STOCK MARKET IS: NOW LESS ACTIVE

Dealings Lapse Into Professional Hands, and Interest Subsides.

NEW YORK, November 27 .- The decrease in the activity of the market cks to-day indicated the lapse

NEW YORK, November 24.—110 accrease in the activity of the market for stocks to-day indicated the lapse into professional hands of most of the dealings and the subsiding general interest on the part of the moneyed interests. The price movement on the diminished scale of activity indicated a growth of confidence on the part of the professionals in the stability of prices. Stocks which were sold out on the eve of Thanksgiving holiday on the chance of unfavorable developments in the interval were repurchased to-day.

No important new developments explained the buying. The expected financial plan for Southern Pacific continued to play an important part in the motives of the professional buying, but no progress was made in any authentic knowledge of what the plan is of of the actual existence of such a plan at all. Another motive for some of the notable movements was the expectation of decisions in pending cases by the Supreme Court at Washington on Monday. The coalers are expected to be benefited by the anticipated decision of the court in the case agreed upon to test the commodities clause of the Hepburn law. Some of the individual advances were based on special causes, rumors of intended dividend increases figuring in one or two cases. An indicated decline for the week in the cash holdings of the banks in the neighborhood of $2.000.000 seemed to be viewed with equanimity. An advance in the discount rate had been looked for, and the open market discount rate in consequence fell back to some extent. Here the condition of the money market was not appreciably changed, the six months period, however, showing a slightly lower interest rate. The foreign exchange market was firm, but rates were not quotably changed. The most active trading of the day occurred just at the last, and prices were then rising vigorously.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $5.010.000. United States
